

LABYRINTH

Powerful Poem

The last poem written by Anne Brontë, "A Dreadful Darkness Closes In" has so touched me during this strange season. The last stanza ends with "Should Death be standing at the gate, Thus should I keep my vow; But, Lord, whatever my future fate, So let me serve Thee now." While I'm not facing death, there is an uncertain future—and my prayer is to continue to serve Him now.

Prayer/Praises

- ✳ Praise that our family has remained well during this time.
- ✳ Prayer for friends and colleagues around the world who are ill.
- ✳ Prayer that we might be light, salt and a sweet aroma of Christ, even when confined to our house. Our attitude either reflects faith or fear.
- ✳ Prayer for financial partners so that the ministry may continue.

Staying focused on Christ

This unprecedented season of threat and isolation has given much time for reflection and prayer. How are you handling it? My prayer is that it will not rob us of the observance of each day of Holy Week, albeit it must be done privately.

My work of "meeting" and praying with missionary artists around the world has only increased during this time. Please pray for those who are so very alone in a country far from home.

The ArtsCharlotte team is finding creative ways to encourage the artists of Charlotte. Ministry doesn't end when the society shuts down—it only increases!

I am grateful for the technology that allow me to personally encourage people in every country of the world. It is amazing, when you consider it.

Have a very blessed celebration of the Resurrection!
